Arthur Zorn (Am. 1954-) is a self-taught abstract impressionist based in Barre Vermont. He largely works with acrylic paint, found objects, and interdisciplinary mediums including music and film. His small and large-scale paintings depict deconstructed landscapes, abstracted natural objects, and emotions transcribed on the canvas. Zorn's first solo visual art show, named "Improvisations," took place in 2004 at the Bundy Gallery in Waitsfield, VT. He has participated in multiple programs at the Mayapple Center for the Arts and Humanities, and studied most notably with John Jerome O'Connor.

Zorn's paintings have appeared in multiple shows, venues, and art walks throughout Vermont. He was selected twice as the featured artist for the "Governor's Art Exhibit" in Montpelier. The State of Vermont's Supreme Court and Pavilion State Office house semi-permanent collections of Zorn's work. His paintings are included in many private collections throughout the United States including California, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, New York, Texas, and Vermont.
